

Eater San Diego: Expansion News for SuperNatural Sandwiches and Farmer's Table

A round-up of the top food and drink stories of the week via Eater San Diego

Eater San Diego shares the top stories of the week from San Diego's food and drink scene, including word on where two popular local eateries will open next.

- Eater SD: Rainbow 'Unicorn' Desserts Debut in Del Mar

SuperNatural Sandwiches Adding Pacific Beach Location

Founded in the Miramar area, the shop known for its gourmet seafood sandwiches recently opened new branches in Santa Ana and Tijuana. Next month, it will debut a storefront on Mission Boulevard and is prepping to launch an expanded eatery in Little Italy.

Farmer's Table Traveling Next to Bay Park

La Mesa's all-day eatery, which serves brunch and a farm-to-table menu of salads, pizzas, and flatbread, will open another location in Bay Park this June. Home to over-the-top Bloody Marys, including one garnished with a whole roast chicken, the casual restaurant is also headed to Little Italy later this summer.