Now in its 13th year of culinary delights, San Diego Restaurant Week kicks off Sept. 24 and runs through Oct. 1 with a myriad of gastronomic pleasures for foodies around the county. How to know where to go and what to eat? For those looking for the latest trends in dining or looking to satisfy their meat, seafood, or vegetarian cravings, PACIFIC has a few must-visit spots for this year's Restaurant Week.

VEGETARIANS

Farmer's Table: Known for farm-fresh dishes, this La Mesa gem offers veggie folks a delicious selection of goodies for Restaurant Week. Start with the Burnt Carrots, with local avocado, red onion, fresh cilantro, feta and a citrus thyme vinaigrette drizzle. Then follow with the comforting Ratatouille Risotto, a mix of seasonal vegetables, herbs de Provence, Arborio rice and white wine.
